Intelligent Order Monitoring

In today's fast-paced environment, you need to quickly identify and respond to issues throughout the order management process—from missing or invalid data to missed steps, delays, and other potential problems.

We use a combination of technology and intelligent monitoring to identify these issues and alert your team before they become larger problems. From symptom and payer checks to teleradiology delays, physician result review, and more, we provide an extra layer of oversight across your workflow.

Your team can stay focused on managing orders while knowing there's a second set of eyes continuously watching for issues that need attention. By identifying problems earlier, you have more time to respond, resolve them, and help prevent downstream delays and disruptions.

Built for Your Workflow

Our product is built on years of experience developing technology for healthcare and beyond. LuceroRAD is purpose-built specifically for mobile imaging workflows, with input and feedback from operators in the industry. From its modern user interface and forms to its workflow design, every aspect is designed around the unique needs of mobile imaging providers.

And we don't stop there. We continuously listen to our users, refine the product, and incorporate new technology to improve performance and deliver additional functionality. We also continually evaluate and enhance our platform's security, privacy, and administrative controls to support evolving HIPAA requirements and healthcare industry standards.

Seamless Data Integration

Data integration is essential in today's fast-paced healthcare environment—from communicating results with EHRs and validating insurance coverage to connecting systems and bringing data together into a seamless workflow.

With 30+ years of experience integrating healthcare systems, our team can help connect the systems you need quickly and efficiently. And we provide our interface services at no additional cost.

We believe data sharing shouldn't come with expensive setup or ongoing fees. We charge no setup or operational fees for interfaces—only pass-through costs when a partner directly charges us for the connection.
